SCORE OUTLANDISHLY LONG LASHES

If you've found yourself wielding multiple wands in order to meet all your lash needs (lengthening, thickening, separating), Flirt! Lash-a-delic Fast Defining Mascara ($14; kohls.com) is for you. Not only does the mascara help you get made up faster, it also comes off in seconds with a bit of warm water (though it's sweat-proof). Be one of 100 readers to win a tube by logging on to shape.com/mascara from March 30 to April 26.

LOVE YOUR LEGS

Surgery-free help is here for those with large varicose veins. Luis Navarro, M.D., founder of the Vein Treatment Center in New York City (veintreatmentcenter.com), recently got FDA approval for his endovenous laser treatment, Endolaser. He inserts the laser through a tiny nick in your skin and passes it through your vein. The heat it emits causes the vessel to collapse painlessly, and the blood is reabsorbed by your body. And just like that, you have sexier gams.

Avoid crossing your legs to prevent ropey varicose veins

THE LATEST IT BAG

When you make the Tarte Be Good to Your Mother (Earth) tote ($35; tarte.com) your gift to mom, everyone wins. The reusable bag contains three natural lip sheers (and by natural, we mean no parabens, phthalates, or petrochemicals), which are packaged in post-consumer recycled aluminum. She's sure to look fabulous—and the planet will too.

THE A-LIST WAY TO GROW OUT YOUR BANGS

Camouflage last season's fringe with this tip we got from hairstylist Helena Faccenda (Heidi Klum's a client). Faccenda suggests parting your hair down the middle, then tucking a bobby pin in each side to hold bangs back. "The rest of your mane will hang over the clips and cover them," she says, "so it looks like the short pieces are gone."

All it takes are a few bobby pins to hide Heidi's bangs
